Annual Report-2015

Introduction

The Aloshikha RSD Center is now just acting as windows on applied knowledge and provides links to source of information. It is working harder exclusively in rural areas; the greater numbers are involved in water and sanitation, vocational training and education, hospital for primary health care services, closely followed by environment and forestry, fisheries and micro credits, providing small loans. In recent years, the donor has initiated several development projects addressing issues of coastal zone management and targeting programs to enhance livelihoods of the coastal population and trying out to empowering vulnerable rural poor women groups with economically empowered by transferring asset and shops for alternative income generation and self-employment.

Empowering the rural poor is a prerequisite for sustainable development and exercise of their rights. It requires challenging exclusion, discrimination and exploitation of and against the landless, women, indigenous people and other dispossessed. The Aloshikha RSD Center Bangladesh is a professionally managed not for profit making charity based social development organization, registered with the social welfare ministry, NGO Affaires Bureau, micro credit regulatory and also affiliated by the ministry of health and family planning department in Bangladesh. The Aloshikha is committed to address various social and economic problems of the economically depressed and vulnerable groups in general. Empowerment of communities is a central focus issue of all Aloshikha's development initiatives. Over the years, the organization has extended its geographical, beneficiary and programmatic coverage quite significantly. The long term development program now includes education both non formal and vocational training education, micro finance, poultry and fishery and water supply and sanitation. All this work is aimed at supporting disadvantaged poor people. Over the year we have to face many difficulties and challenges with political unrest and natural disaster as well as financial constraints.

By the late 1995 an integrated comprehensive program superseded its sectoral work, focused on concentrated group organization of the poor, emphasizing social, education and economic elements. Since the Aloshikha successes have included the community based health and sanitation program to improving living standards of the out-reach and remote villages are raising awareness of women rights and women empowerment, promoting savings, credit and skill training to improve the livelihoods of the poor communities. The Aloshikha program continues to evolve and innovate; current realities mean the program now comprises a range of various projects and financing large and small, which all contribute to a common objective. However, we are always encouraging to the local communities to developing all form of education in general or vocational education that could be make them smart and expertise to engaged any job or self supportive or self-employments.

This report is a testimony to the fact that with a synergetic approach towards development with support from the donor community and the local people a lot can be done to improve livelihoods.
